After arriving in Denpasar, I was driven to Tanah Lot and Hotel Natya where the first nights took place. A nice centrally located hotel. The length of the tour was approx. 20 km, but lasted 1½ hours to finish.

After Tanah Lot, the tour of Bali went to Permuteran on the north western part of the island of Antari Hotel. The area was nice, but there were not many places to eat. The length of the car was about 80 km, but lasted 3 hours to complete.

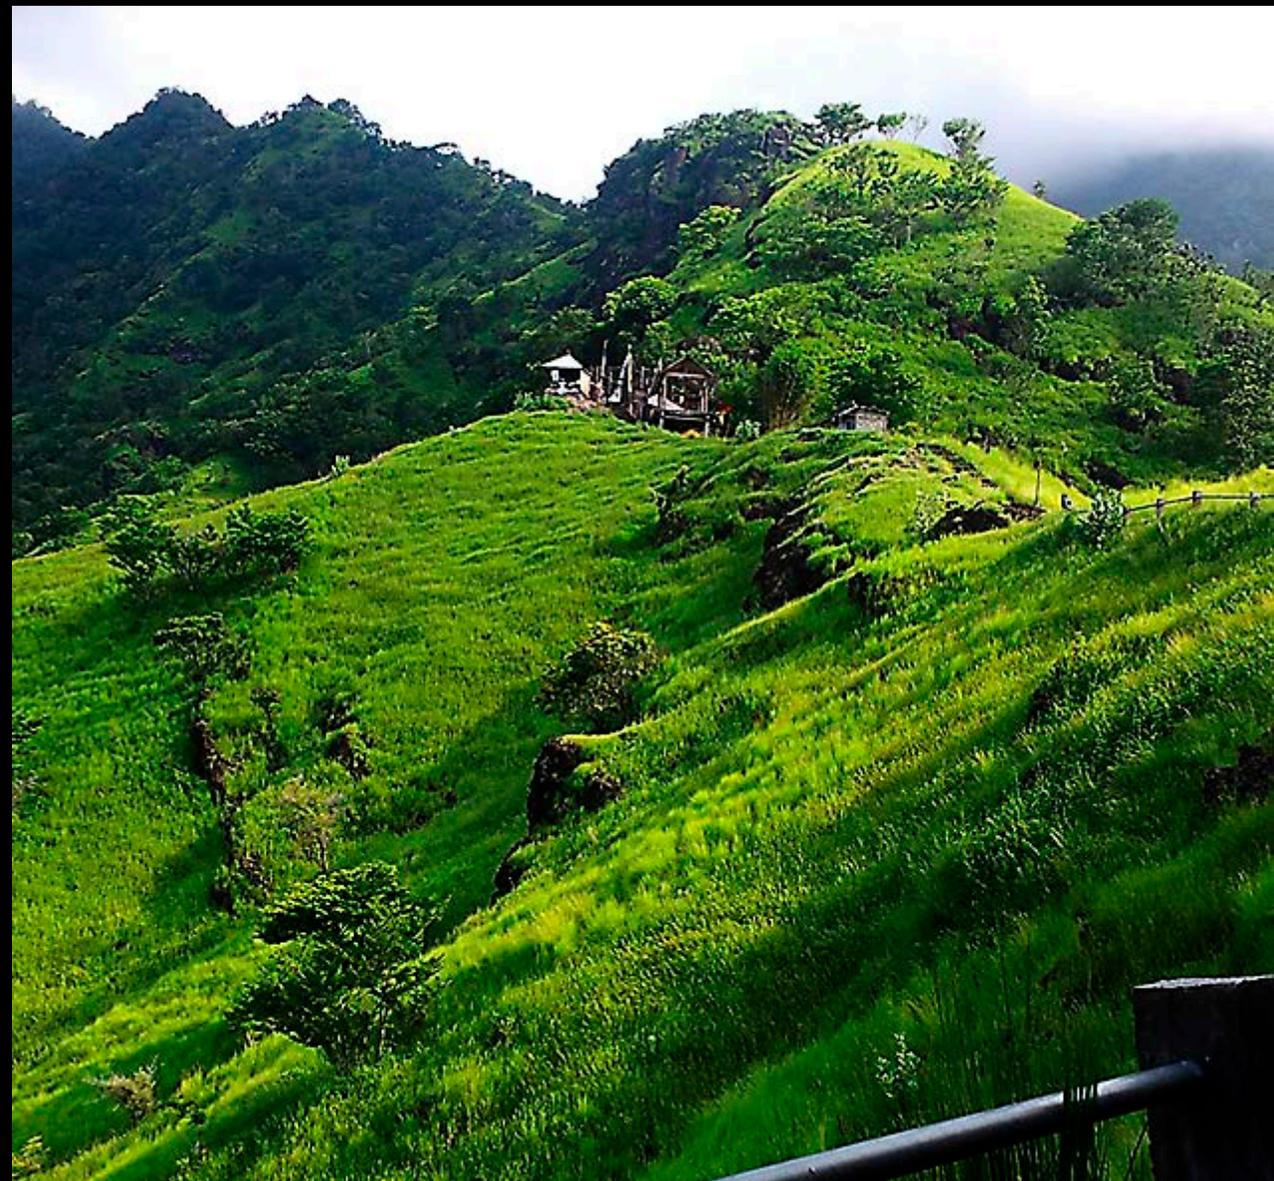

After the Permuteran on the north western part of the island, the tour of Bali continued to Nick's Pension in the center of Ubud.
A good place with rice fields in the backyard.
The length of the tour was about 80 km and crossed the high mountains in the middle of the island and was completed in 3 hours.

Continue onward and Lihat Sawah. A place I did not know in advance, but a fantastic shot in the dark I found here and was very happy. Beautiful and lush area to wander in. The length of the tour was approx. 20 km, and lasted 1 hour.

From Sedimen, I went to my favorite city, Candi Dasa and Bali Palms Resort. Somewhere I also stayed in 2017 and where I feel good. The length of the tour was approx. 20 km, and lasted barely 1 hour.

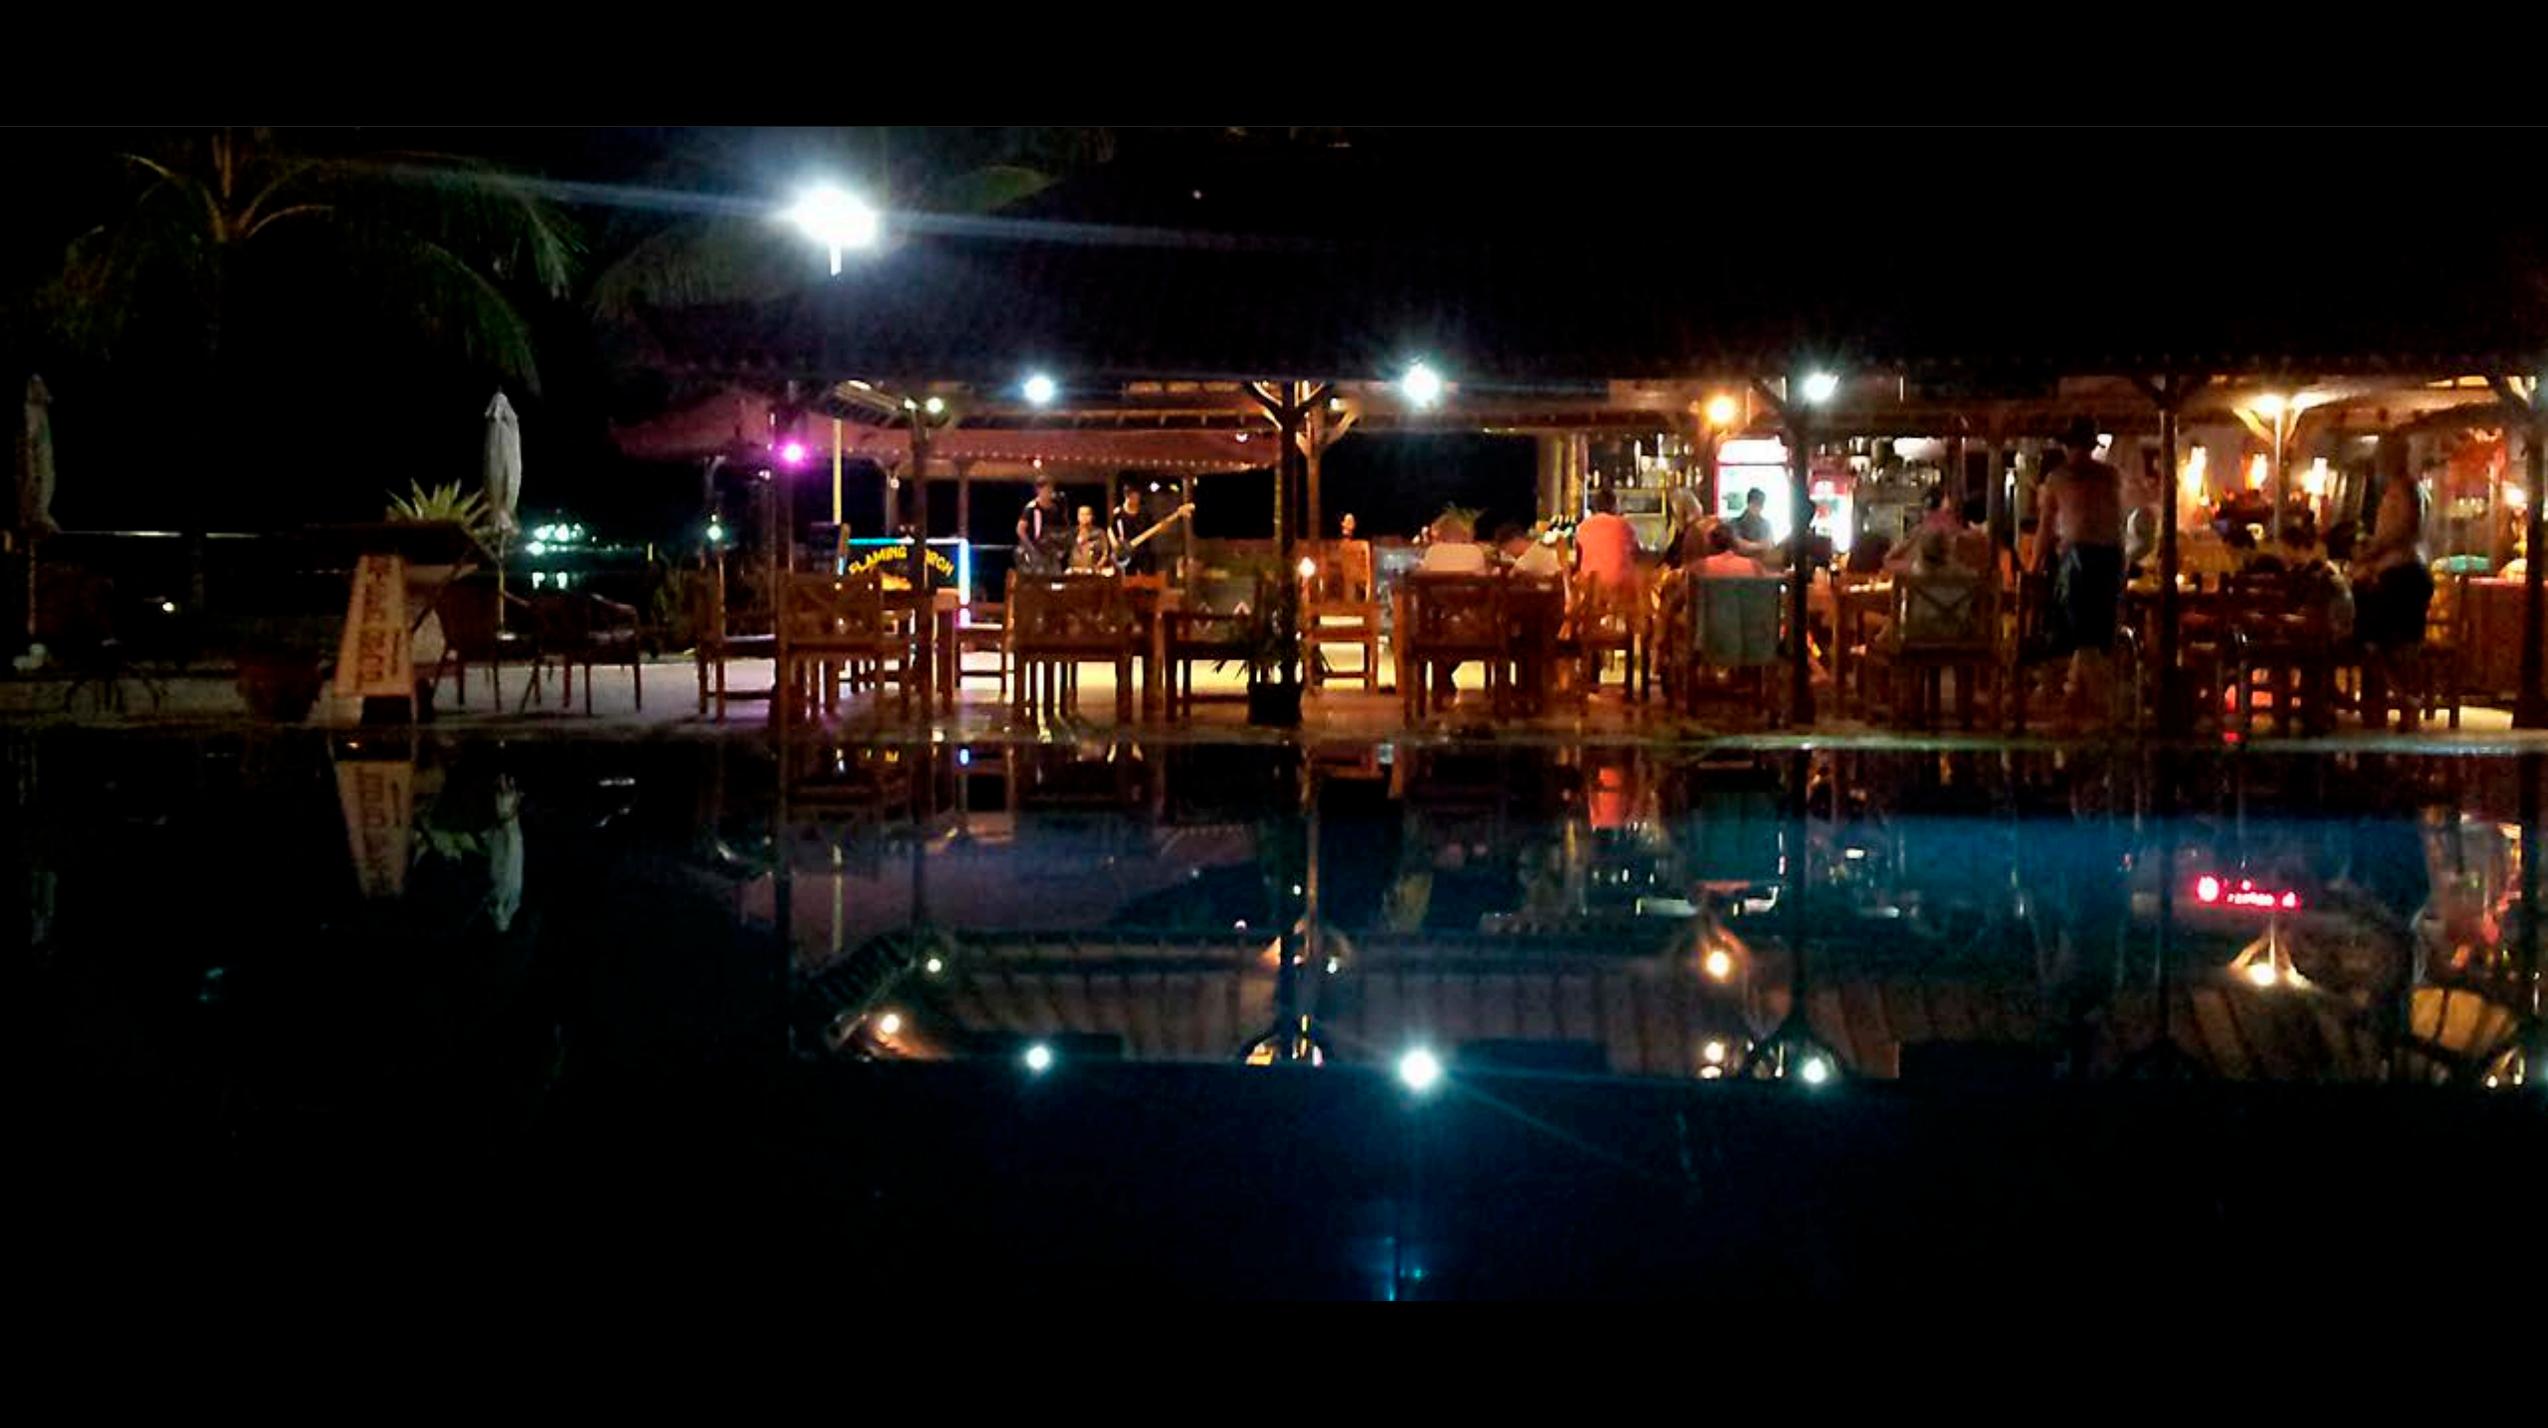

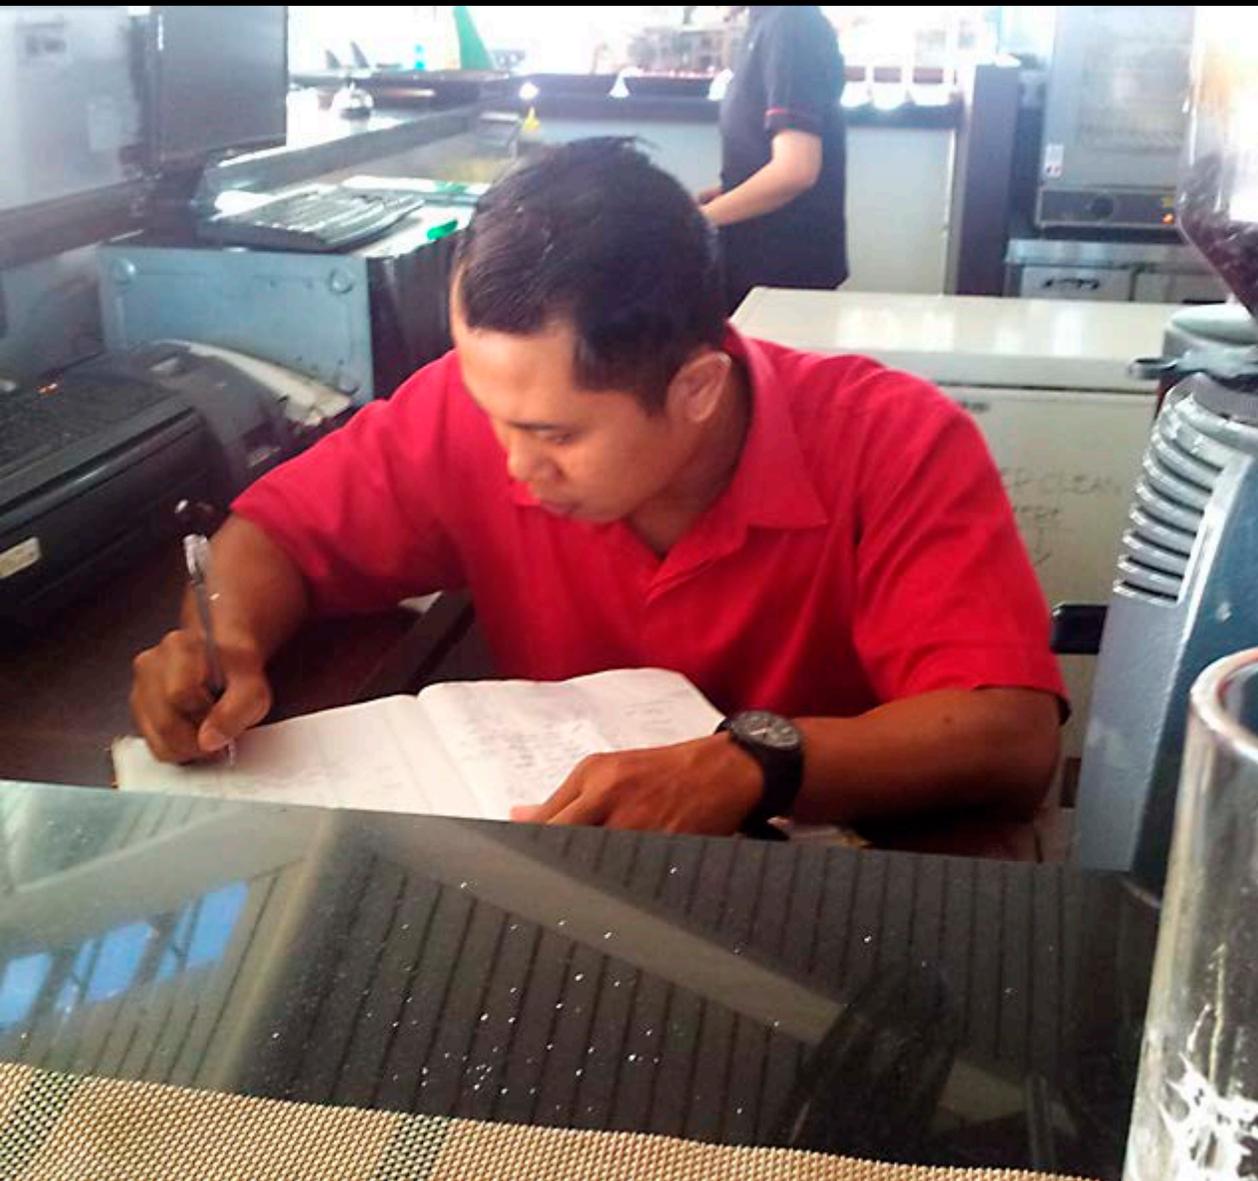

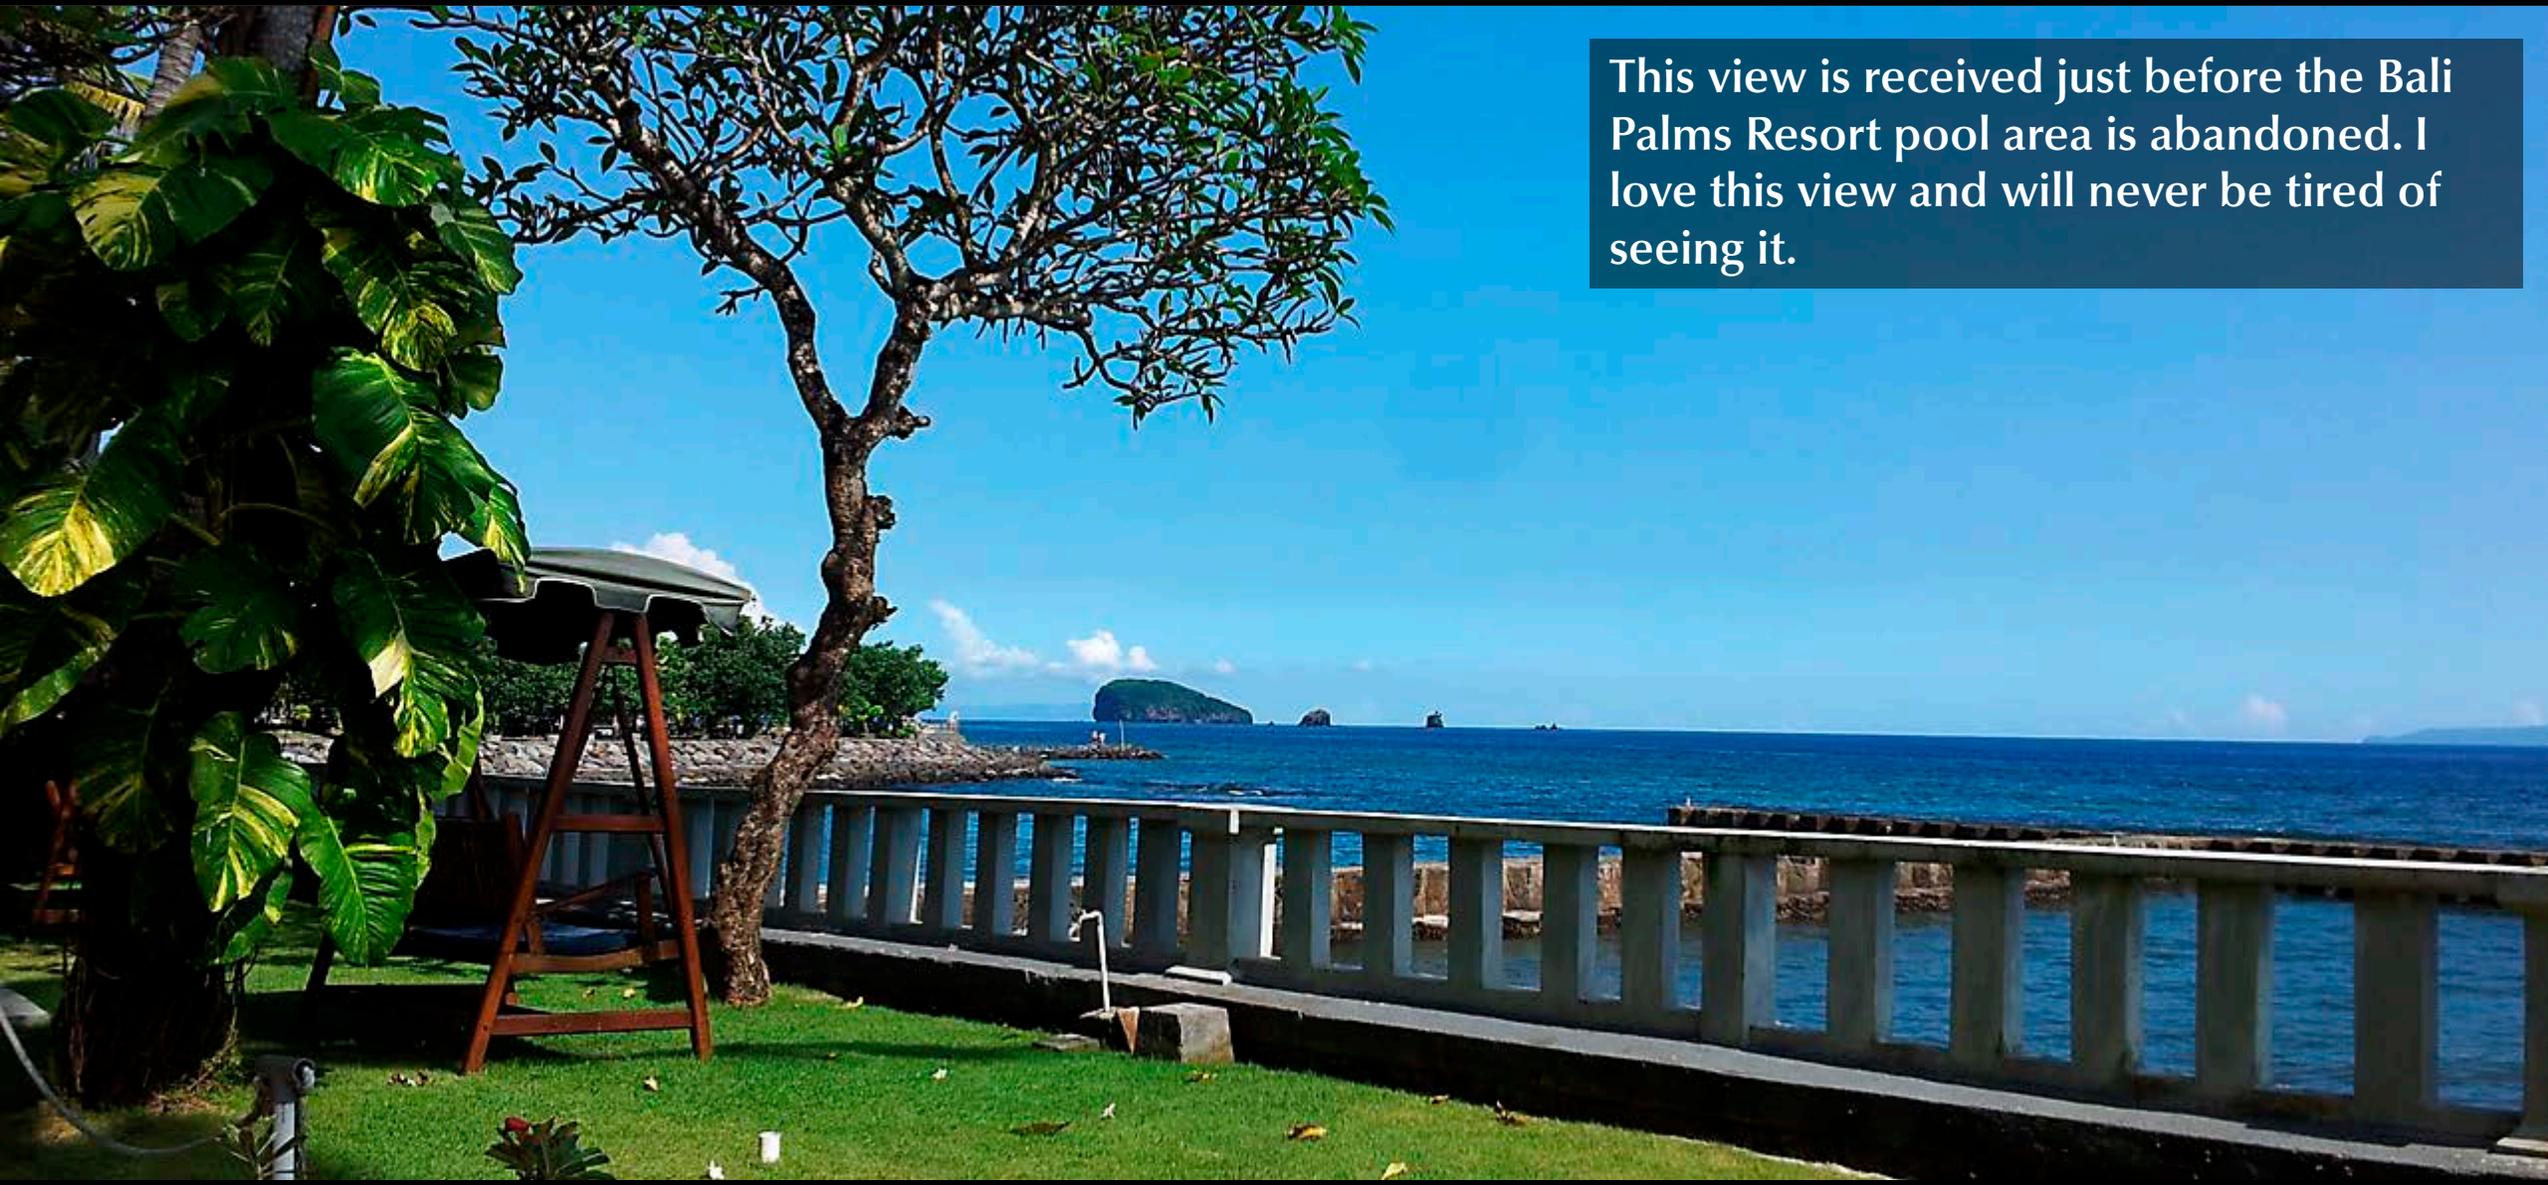

Now the plan was actually to fly home to Denmark this Sunday. However, Expedia had made an error, so I arrived 24 hours late on my plane. It required an extra night and a new flight, I had to pick up at Qatar Airways office in Kuta, 500m from the hotel - Griya Bunga. The trip from Candi Dasa to the airport is approx. 60 km, and takes 1½ to 2 hours.

This view is received just before the Bali Palms Resort pool area is abandoned. I love this view and will never be tired of seeing it.
